ABSTRACT

Among the pleiotropic effects attributed to the newly discovered SARS-CoV-2 virus, several observations recently pointed towards a psychopathological behaviour in mentally-retarded Twittos characterized by a tendency to believe they have a Nobel Prize in Medicine even if they don't know shit about sciences (D.R, personal communication).

In this double dumb, egocentric, randomized data, observational study, HCQ promotion on Twitter was statistically associated with permanent brain damage (p-value < Planck constant) and was clinically manifested by a Pavlovian reflex to support scatological science in response to the non-sensical Youtube videos of a long-hair, bearded individual with a funny accent and whose mental state could not be assessed because of vacuum quantum fluctuation. Sodium hypochlorite proved ineffective at restoring minimal neuronal activity.

METHODS

Recruitment: a single tweet questioning the validity of the data regarding HCQ's efficacy was sent at 21h42, and responses were collected until 21h43 (N=12 832 responses). Exclusion criteria: Participants were screened for residual brain activity using Arecibo's radio telescope (the Hawking radiation of the SgrA* black hole was used as upper threshold value, none excluded).¹ "You should add Zinc" responders (N=8 416) were excluded for communication-related disabilities (the present author couldn't understand what the fuck they were talking about).² Study plan: Patients recruited had ad libitum access to toilet paper, Pastis 51 and Donald Trump's twitter account. Confounding factors (paranoid conspiracy theories about Big Pharma and/or Bill Gate's RFID vaccine, climate change skepticism, scooter injury, "Plus belle la vie" fan club) were corrected using the Cooper-Hofstadter-Wolowitz circular regression method until data matched our pre-established conclusion. The fake 65000 Lupus patients from Italy were used as control group (courtesy of Dr House, Princeton-Plainsboro hospital). Treatment: Therapeutic intervention was attempted using our unilaterally approved standard-of-care therapy, consisting in intra-rectal infusion of a 72mol/L sodium hypochlorite (Eau-de-Javel® Eucalyptus perfume, Carrefour-Market) solution administered at 27L/min for at least 48h under telemedical supervision (Prevent Senior Institute, Sao Paulo). However, no improvement in symptoms was observed (gut microbiota can therefore be ruled out as potential culprits for the disease).³ Further studies are ongoing to establish whether neuronal connections can be restored in these critically injured individuals.^{4a,b}

CONCLUSION

What we've got here is failure to communicate. In light of the dramatic pandemic the world is currently facing, and despite the unanimously acclaimed devotion by medical staff commanding worldwide respect and support, supplemented by the tremendous amount of work generated by real scientists in quest for desperately awaited efficacious remedies and/or protective vaccines, this observational study suggests that finding a cure for everybody without any discrimination based on a minimum level of critical rationality in the intention-to-treat population may not be the best service humanity can offer to our endangered planet. End of the game.

SUPPLEMENTARY DATA

Fake-interview with my sequestered PhD student available online at www.youporn.com/DédéRaëlt-myskullringinyourass.

CONFLICT OF INTEREST

Megalomaniac interest in writing as many rubbish preprints as possible and making online buzz.

AUTHOR CONTRIBUTION

D.R. wrote the conclusion, provided free booze for everyone, then designed the study and yelled at anyone who disagree.

ETHICS STATEMENT

The present study was approved by the "Amicale des chasseurs de sangliers de Luminy" committee. No mentally sane individual was involved in this investigation, but 3 PhD students committed suicide during the course of the study.
